Program or Field Office: Advanced Research Projects Agency - Energy

Project Title: 0290-1628 General Atomics - Soluble Lead Flow Battery Technology

Location: California

Proposed Action or Project Description:

American Recovery and Reinvestment Act:

Funding will support laboratory and bench scale research and development on a novel lead flow battery design which eliminates the need for a separator or membrane material. The proposed work is consistent with the goal of GRIDS: development of new technologies to enable the widespread deployment of cost-effective, grid-scale energy storage.

Proposed work consists entirely of RD&D work to be completed in facilities and labs at both General Atomics and the University of California, San Diego. Both are located in San Diego, CA. The work performed will be limited to in-lab design, analysis, and development.

Categorical Exclusion(s) Applied:

X - B3.6 Siting/construction/operation/decommissioning of facilities for bench-scale research, conventional laboratory operations, small-scale research and development and pilot projects
